

"As a physician immigrant from war torn Europe, my mother, Dr. Rosemary Stevens, tirelessly sustained her love of medicine, re-credentialing her medical license upon arriving in the United States some twenty years after completing medical school. This gift is to honor my mother's infinite devotion to her family in the face of significant personal loss and her enduring resolve to help others through the practice of ophthalmology. Her legacy has transcended the generations. As a young teen, I watched my mother face each obstacle with a strong resolve while pursuing her dream. As a physician and father, I celebrated seeing my daughter aspire to her own medical career, cherished by our shared legacy. It is my hope that this gift will allow refugees from war torn countries return to medical careers with fewer obstacles."
